Sustainability

Sustainability in managing our water resources is crucial for ensuring a healthy and prosperous future for all living beings. Increasing pollution, over-use and climate change pose significant threats to water quality and availability.

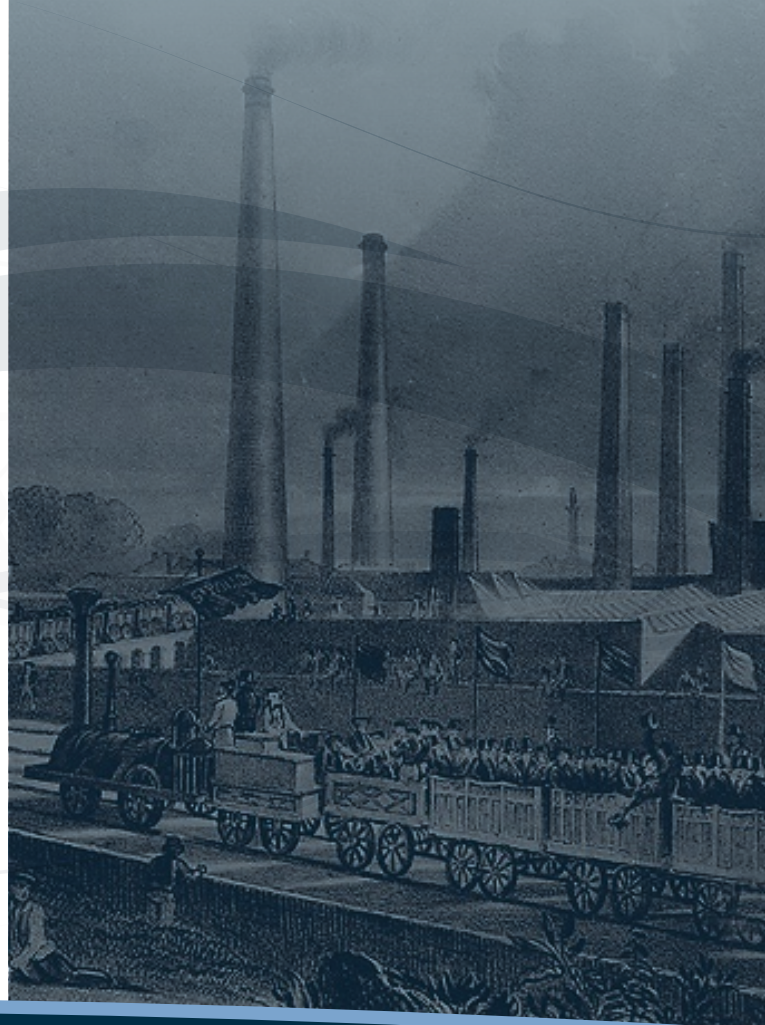

Adopting sustainable water management practices, such as efficient usage, pollution prevention, and advanced treatment technologies, can help protect this invaluable resource and secure a healthy water supply for future generations.

Tennants strive to offer water treatment solutions that are not only cost-effective, but also environmentally responsible and minimise the impact on our planet.

About Tennants

The Tennant Group began in Glasgow in 1797 when Charles Tennant invented a stable process for bleaching cloth; a revolutionary process at the time, transforming the textile industry and leading to Tennants becoming a global chemical producer.

Since that time the Tennant Group has developed into a successful, independent, chemical company, involved predominantly in the manufacture and distribution of chemicals. Today, the Tennant Group is one of the UK's leading chemical distribution companies, employing over 1000 people worldwide.
